Fort Hood once again bloodied by shooting rampage

Texas. Obama reflects on sacrifices made by troops at base where 13 were killed in 2009

A gunman opened fire Wednesday at the U.S. Army's Fort Hood in an attack that left four confirmed dead as of press time, including the shooter, law enforcement officials said.

One official, citing internal Justice Department updates, said 14 others were hurt.

The Texas Army base was the scene of a mass shooting in 2009. Thirteen people were killed and more than 30 wounded in what was the deadliest attack on a domestic military installation in history.

A U.S. law-enforcement official said reports circulating within the Justice Department indicate the shooter died of what appeared to be a self-inflicted wound.

The Army said on its official Twitter feed that the post was still on lockdown as of Wednesday evening. Outside the base, relatives of soldiers waited for news about their loved ones.

Tayra DeHart, 33, said she had last heard from her husband that he was safe, but that was hours earlier.

"The last two hours have been the most nerve-wracking I've ever felt. I know God is here protecting me and all the soldiers, but I have my phone in my hand just hoping it will ring," DeHart said.

In Chicago, President Barack Obama vowed that investigators will get to the bottom of the shooting, seeking to reassure a nation whose sense of security has once again been shaken by mass violence.

In a hastily arranged statement, Obama reflected on the sacrifices that troops stationed at Fort Hood have made — including during multiple tours to Iraq and Afghanistan.

"They serve with valour, they serve with distinction and when they're at their home base, they need to feel safe," Obama said. "Obviously that sense of safety has been broken once again."

Attack threatened?

Foxnews.com reported Monday that the FBI had been searching for a recent Army recruit who may have been planning an "imminent" Fort Hood-inspired "jihad."

- However, the website reported Tuesday that the FBI did not consider him an imminent threat.

Ford votes against honouring Mandela, athletes

Mayor Rob Ford was the lone member of council to vote Wednesday against finding a street to dedicate to Nelson Mandela. He was also the lone vote against a symbolic motion to congratulate Canada's Olympians.

Rob Ford
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Both proposals carried 40-1. Ford did not explain his opposition to either of them, and he rose about 35 minutes after the Mandela vote and about 20 minutes after the Olympics vote to say he had "voted the wrong way" both times.

Ford asked for a re-vote. But council did not immediately grant him the courtesy, since not all of the councillors who voted the first time were still in the chamber, and some of his colleagues were dubious of his chief of staff's claim that he had twice made an honest "error."

"Don't buy it for a second," Coun. Josh Matlow told reporters. Ford, he said, casts votes "out of disdain and disgust and just out of spite" sometimes because of personal antipathy to the councillor who put forth a proposal.

"He knew exactly what he was doing.... And now he's trying to get out of it because he's been caught," Matlow said.

Ford is known for his contrarian votes against popular programs and ideas, usually out of opposition to spending money.

Police forces at odds over Project Brazen 2 theories

Crime. OPP steps back from investigation after disagreement over identity of extortion victim

The OPP is taking a back-seat role in the Project Brazen 2 probe following a dispute with Toronto police over who was the victim of extortion — the alleged drug dealer who made the video or Mayor Rob Ford, who is pictured in the video.

Toronto detectives believe the man who made the video and his associate were the victims of an extortive attempt by Ford friend Alexander "Sandro" Lisi, and possibly others, to retrieve the video of Ford apparently smoking crack.

The Ontario Provincial Police detective who was asked to oversee the case saw it differently, contending that the alleged drug dealer who filmed the one-minute video may have tried to extort money from Ford.

As a result, the much talked-about Project Brazen 2 probe has been mired in dispute over the past two weeks, according to two sources with knowledge of the investigation. The disagreement led to the OPP, at least for now, removing itself from the probe.

In a short statement by OPP communications officer Sgt. Pierre Chamberland, the force said Wednesday that "the OPP has determined that there is no role for further investigation because to date there is no new information or evidence that has been provided to the OPP."

The Toronto police squad's investigative theory, put forth by Det. Sgt. Gary Giroux, a veteran homicide investigator, has long been that Ford's friend Lisi used threats to have two men — Mohamed Siad, who filmed the video, and Liban Syad, a friend — to turn over the video so that it would never see the light of day.

Those threats by Lisi allegedly were made in a two-day period beginning May 16, 2013, the day the existence of the video became public. Police have charged Lisi with extortion and drug trafficking and have executed search warrants on phones belonging to Lisi, Ford and others to determine whether anyone conspired with Lisi or if he acted alone. Senior Crown attorneys have been assisting the Toronto detectives during the probe.

Gorilla business: Zoo taking baby names

Awwww, it's l'il fill-in-the-blank. Toronto Zoo reaching out to public to give 3-month-old female western lowland gorilla an 'N' name

The Toronto Zoo says it needs helps naming its new baby gorilla.

The female western lowland gorilla was born at the zoo on Jan. 10 to mom Ngozi and dad Charles.

The three-month-old baby is the 15th gorilla to be sired by Charles and born at the Toronto Zoo since it opened in 1974, zoo officials say.

Names can be submitted online on the zoo's website until April 22 and the winning name will be announced at the end of the month.

The zoo says the name should be suitable for a female and African names are desired.

The name must also start with the letter "N" in line with the zoo's tradition of naming baby gorillas with the first initial from the mother's name. The baby's older brother Nassir was born in 2009.

The zoo says the new baby is genetically significant for the western lowland gorilla population being raised in North America, since it is a critically endangered species.

The zoo is a longtime partner in the Gorilla Species Survival Plan, which focuses on conservation to help prevent extinction. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Maternal bond

- The zoo says Ngozi likes to rock her baby and that staff and visitors will often find the mother gorilla tenderly gazing at her newborn's face.
- She has not put the baby down since the day she was born, they say, and she probably won't for many more months.

Aging boomers to slow Ontario's growth: Report

An aging population and slower labour force growth will contribute to sluggish economic growth in Ontario over the next two decades, the province predicts in its long-term economic report.

Both "may restrain future economic growth in the absence of significant productivity improvements," the report released Wednesday cautions.

"The report indicates the need for consistency, predictability and steady hands," said Finance Minister Charles Sousa, who is to table a budget in May that could trigger a June election.

The economic outlook calls for an average of 2.1 per cent annual growth in real GDP through 2035.

Although that rate barely exceeds inflation, Sousa maintained that the provincial budget will be balanced by 2017-18. He is to deliver a revised deficit figure on Thursday that will be slightly lower than the $11.7 billion forecast.

The 170-page update delivered Wednesday at Queen's Park is the latest to highlight the impact of the Baby Boom generation on Canada's future economic performance

Last month, Bank of Canada governor Stephen Poloz raised the issue in a speech to the Halifax Chamber of Commerce.

Baby Boomers, generally considered those born between 1946 and 1964, will be one of the driving factors behind slower economic growth across Canada in the years ahead, Poloz said. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Mayoral candidate John Tory looks at the grilled cheese sandwich he ordered from Caplansky's food trucks outside city hall on Wednesday. Tory says he would make the subway relief line priority No. 1. ANDREW FRANCIS WALLACE/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Chow says relief line shouldn't be an issue

Election. Mayoral candidate tells radio station that she supports the line, but notes it won't open until 2031

The downtown relief subway line should not be an issue in Toronto's 2014 municipal election campaign, mayoral candidate Olivia Chow says.

During a radio interview Wednesday, Chow was asked about her commitment to building the subway line. Critics have accused her of waffling on her position since launching her campaign last month.

Transit trivia

Olivia Chow has promised to cancel the Scarborough subway if she's elected and replace it with an above-ground rail line that she says would be built four years sooner, with four more stops, for $1 billion less.

Chow said while she supports the line, she noted it is not projected to open until 2031, 17 years from now.

"I don't think it should be an election issue because … nothing is going to break ground for another four, five, years, six years, because the study itself will take that long," she said in the interview on CIUT 89.5 FM.

Mayoral candidate John Tory has made building a downtown relief line, which he calls the Yonge Street relief line, a key part of his platform.

In a statement released Wednesday, Tory said Torontonians have "a very clear choice between Ms. Chow and I," as he is the candidate who "can get action on Yonge Street Relief Line."

In an email, Jamey Heath, Chow's communications director, questioned how Tory can make that claim when so far he's outlined "no plan, no partnerships, no timeline and no tax pledge beyond 'low.'" TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

It's alleged that the woman's housekeeper's family moved into the woman's home in early March, confining the woman to a smaller bedroom and selling off much of her furniture and jewelry. Police allege that the elderly woman was defrauded of most of her life savings — about $25,000. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pre-emptive move. Two mags let go interns, some making $2.30 an hour

At least two Rogers-owned publications have dropped their internship programs, Torstar News Service has learned.

In a pre-emptive move, interns at Flare and Chatelaine who were either unpaid or receiving a $400 honorarium were let go Tuesday.

The Ministry of Labour said it has received no complaints and issued no compliance notices for those magazines or others owned by Rogers Communications Inc., one of Canada's largest corporations.

"Moving forward, we want all our internships to be associated with an educational institution or to be paid," said spokeswoman Louise Leger in an emailed statement. As for whether paid internships will be created, the company was "evaluating" its program, she said.

At Chatelaine, interns received $400 monthly, or "transportation and lunch money," said Diana Duong, who had been an editing intern at Chatelaine for about a month and was let go Tuesday with at least two others.

Quoted

"I grew to forget about the money, but I'm lucky because I don't have to pay for rent."

Diana Duong, former Chatelaine intern

That works out to around $2.30 per hour for a 40-hour work week, far below the minimum wage. The Flare internships were unpaid.

Still, Duong, 22, said she wishes she'd been able to stay at Chatelaine, and blames the Ministry of Labour, not Rogers.

"This law is made with good intentions and in the end it's going to be good for all of us, but for the interns in the middle of a contract, we were really happy," she said. "I learned a lot. The meetings were inspiring ... I grew to forget about the money, but I'm lucky because I don't have to pay for rent."

TTC poaches YRT boss for customer relations

New post. Rick Leary wraps five-year stint at York Region Transit to become the TTC's first chief service officer

Five years after taking the wheel at York Region Transit, Rick Leary is crossing the border again.

But this time, the former Boston transit executive is only going as far as the TTC, where he has been named to the newly created post of chief service officer. He will be responsible for driving up the performance of bus and streetcar routes and will oversee the system's 69 subway stations. The six group station managers appointed last year will report to him.

"He has the knowledge, experience and, critically, the people skills to drive up performance of surface transit and customer satisfaction," said TTC CEO Andy Byford.

Leary helped implement the Presto electronic fare card in York Region, the regional payment system the TTC will launch on its new streetcars later this year. He has also seen the region open the first of its new bus rapid transit system with dedicated bus lanes on major routes.

During his five years there, ridership grew from 18.6 million to about 23 million riders annually on its regular buses and Viva express service.

"Customer complaints have gone down. On-time performance has gone up. Vehicle reliability has gone up," said Leary, adding that he's excited about joining North America's third-largest transit system on May 5, as the TTC is seeking to modernize operations and customer relations. Rick Leary, York Region Transit general manager, is moving on to the TTC.

U.K. smog forms from pollution, big Sahara storm

Perfect storm. Pollution in some areas reaches top of the scale; health warnings issued; desert dust mixing in European pollution and dust swirling in from the Sahara created a "perfect storm" of smog in Britain on Wednesday, prompting authorities to warn people with heart or lung conditions to cut down on tough physical exercise outdoors.

Air pollution in some areas reached the top rung on its 10-point scale, the environment department said.

The smog was caused by pollution from Britain and industrialized areas of the continent — trapped in place because of light winds — mixing with dust blown up from a storm in the Sahara desert. Many motorists across England awoke this week to find cars covered in a film of red dust left by overnight rain. People with heart or respiratory problems were advised to reduce strenuous exercise outdoors.

An unusual combination of factors had conspired "to create a 'perfect storm' for air pollution," said meteorologist Helen Dacre.

Despite efforts to make industry and automobiles cleaner, air pollution remains a major problem in Britain and across Europe.

Last month, Paris took the drastic step of banning half the city's cars from the roads for a day after a week in which pollution levels exceeded those in notoriously smoggy cities including Beijing and Delhi.

Air pollution is the world's single biggest environmental health risk, responsible for about one in eight deaths, the World Health Organization said last week.

Air pollution kills about seven million people worldwide every year, with more than half of the fatalities due to fumes from indoor stoves and the rest from outdoor pollutants, the WHO said.

Paul Cosford of Public Health England told the BBC that people with heart or respiratory problems should "reduce the amount of strenuous exercise outdoors over the next few days."

"Toxic gases, such as nitrogen dioxide and ozone, as well as fine dust particles in the air blown in from the Sahara and from burning fossil fuels, all contribute to cause problems for people with heart, lung and breathing problems, such as asthma."

Washington mudslide. Search continues as weather improves

Floodwaters are receding at the site of a massive mudslide that crushed a rural Washington state community, allowing crews to expand their search and yielding more human remains in areas that previously couldn't be reached.

More than 10 days after a large section of a rain-soaked hill crashed down on a neighbourhood in the small community of Oso, teams with cadaver dogs are still sifting through debris and soil to determine exactly how many people died in the March 22 mudslide. With the rain stopped, the floodwaters are receding, which is allowing more crews to switch from water pumping to searching.

Chatham-Kent. Members of Jewish sect embroiled in child custody case arrested over immigration issues

Six members of an ultra-orthodox Jewish sect were arrested Wednesday by the Canada Border Services Agency over suspected immigration issues, their lawyer said.

Some families in the Lev Tahor community are at the centre of an ongoing child custody case, including one family that fled to Guatemala, but it's not clear if the arrests were in any way connected to the case.

One community member listed the names of six people he said were arrested and they were not those involved in the child welfare case.

Chatham-Kent Children's Services co-operated with the CBSA, who arrested Lev Tahor members "who are believed to be in violation of Canada's immigration policy/laws," Stephen Doig, the children's aid society's executive director, wrote in an email.

The people arrested are known to have 28 children, Doig said. Kids in cases where both parents in a family have been detained and there is no alternate caregiver are put in care, Doig said, though he did not say how many kids were in children's aid custody.

The children were all back in the community hours later, being looked after by relatives or alternate caregivers, the group's lawyer, Guidy Mamann, said Wednesday evening.

Members of the community told local radio station Blackburn News that those arrested are Israeli citizens and their visas had expired. One member of the community told The Canadian Press some of those arrested were American citizens. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stolen Gauguin found in autoworker's kitchen

A Paul Gauguin still life stolen from a wealthy collector's home in Britain has been recovered after hanging for 40 years in a Sicilian autoworker's kitchen.

The worker bought the painting along with one of lesser value by another French artist, Pierre Bonnard, for about $100 at a legitimate 1975 Italian state railway auction of unclaimed lost items, said Maj. Massimiliano Quagliarella of the paramilitary Carabinieri art theft squad. Italian authorities estimated Wednesday that the still life is worth between $14 million and $40 million.

The painting is believed to have "travelled" on a Paris-to-Turin train before the worker purchased it, said Gen. Mariano Mossa. When the autoworker retired to Sicily, the man's son, who studied architecture at university, noticed a telling detail: a dog curled up in the corner. Dogs were sometimes a signature motif for Gauguin's work.

The man's son contacted an art expert to give an evaluation. The expert concluded the work was likely a Gauguin painting, and contacted the Carabinieri.

The painting depicts two bowls, brimming with brightly coloured grapes, apples and other pieces of fruit, posed on a table. In black on the canvas is painted "89," an indication that it was painted in 1889. It now measures 46.5 centimetres by 53 centimetres. That is slightly smaller than the work as Gaugin created it, because the thieves had cut it out of its frame, police said.

The art squad traced it using newspaper articles in 1970 reporting the theft of a wealthy London family's collection.

Marinello said there could be a battle for ownership of the recovered paintings. He said the autoworker could have a right to them under Italian law if he could prove he bought them in good faith.

Party to look at MP's conduct

Controversy brewing. Riding association pens letter to PM asking for help in resolving issues with Eve Adams

ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Prime Minister Stephen Harper has asked the Conservative party to investigate a series of allegations made by grassroots members against Ontario MP Eve Adams, part of an unfolding controversy that has already claimed a key campaign director.

Adams is in a heated battle for the Tory nomination in a suburban Toronto riding.

Her fiancé, Dimitri Soudas, was forced to resign as the party's executive director amid mounting concerns he was using his position to help her win.

The party has been trying to signal to members across the country that it wants fair and open nominations for the 2015 election, with no favouritism shown to incumbent MPs.

Now the Conservative riding association board in Oakville North-Burlington has written to ask for Harper's help in resolving issues with Adams' conduct.

"We are all committed to doing our best to elect a new Conservative MP for our community, for our party, for our majority government and for you," riding association president Mark Fedak wrote in a letter signed by 28 board members.

"But recently we have been running into obstacles beyond our control and believe only your leadership can provide the needed solution."

Jason MacDonald, a spokesman for Harper, said the matter was being addressed.

Big quake in Chile causes little damage

Hard-won expertise and a big dose of luck helped Chile escape its latest magnitude-8.2 earthquake with surprisingly little damage and death.

The country that suffers some of the world's most powerful quakes has strict building codes, mandatory evacuations and emergency preparedness that sets a global example. But Chileans weren't satisfied Wednesday, finding much room for improvement. And experts warn that a "seismic gap" has left northern Chile overdue for a far bigger quake.

Authorities on Wednesday discovered just six reported deaths from the previous night's quake. It's possible that other people were killed in older structures made of adobe in remote communities that weren't immediately accessible, but it's still a very low toll for such a powerful shift in the undersea fault that runs along the length of South America's Pacific coast.

Canadians 'should be outraged' by Wi-Fi spy allegations: MP

Snowden documents. CSEC says it only 'incidentally' intercepts Canadian communications

JOE LOFARO
Metro in Ottawa

Documents leaked by Edward Snowden seem to show the Canadian government was snooping on its citizens at the airport. CONTRIBUTED

If protecting the privacy of Canadians is Communications Security Establishment Canada's "most important principle," why do documents leaked by Edward Snowden appear to indicate the spy agency snooped on Canadian citizens at a Canadian airport?

It's a question that's sparked debate in Parliament and one that NDP digital issues critic Charmaine Borg still struggles with. Borg said Canadians "should be outraged" by allegations published in a January CBC News report which said CSEC spied on Canadians by scooping up metadata from a free Wi-Fi network.

CSEC chief John Forster defended his agency's actions, saying it only "incidentally" intercepts Canadian communications while targeting foreigners.

Metro was denied multiple requests for an interview with Public Safety Canada, the ministry responsible for cybersecurity, and its minster, Steven Blaney.

"Our Government takes cybersecurity seriously and operates on the advice of security experts," wrote Blaney's press secretary, Jason Tamming, in an email, which also mentioned a $245-million investment in the government's Cyber Security Strategy. The strategy was designed to protect public and private sector IT networks and the personal information of Canadians against online threats.

In another email to Metro, Sabrina Meheš, a Public Safety spokesperson, noted Canadian intelligence agencies are subject to "multiple layers of scrutiny."

"CSEC and CSIS, are both subject to independent review," wrote Meheš. "There is also judicial oversight of more intrusive CSIS activities, and Ministerial approval of certain CSEC and CSIS activities."

But Borg and privacy advocates worry about more than just the government. In 2013 Borg tabled a private member's bill to give the federal privacy commissioner powers to hold private firms more accountable. Bill C-475, however, did not pass second reading in January.

As for what Canada is doing to protect the privacy of Canadians from corporations and hackers, Meheš referred Metro to the same Cyber Security Strategy.

Sometimes the law isn't enough. When firms break the law, the privacy commissioner can only make corrective recommendations and hope for the best.

"Here in Canada, all they get is a meager slap on the wrist," said Borg. "If there are repercussions for violating our privacy laws, these organizations will start to treat the privacy of Canadians more seriously."

Why you should care

The question of what law-abiding people have to fear from government spying is likely self evident to anyone who has ever deleted their browsing history, but the question always comes up — why should we care?

In his recent Ted Talk in Vancouver via Skype, Edward Snowden addressed the question head on.

"The first thing is, you're giving up your rights. You're saying hey, you know, I don't think I'm going to need them," Snowden said. "People should be able to buy a book online, they should be able to travel by train, they should be able to buy an airline ticket without wondering about how these events are going to look to an agent of the government, possibly not even your government, years in the future."

No one knows for sure

What's legal? What's not?

We may be starting to slowly understand what our governments are really up to these days after NSA whistleblower Edward Snowden began exposing government spying techniques to the world last summer.

But examining the magnitude of the Canadian government's spying efforts on its own people makes it clear there's still a lot we don't know.

"When you look at the totality of what Snowden has revealed, we find that virtually all our communication, it would seem, is captured in some form," said Michael Geist, Canada research chair in Internet and e-commerce law at the University of Ottawa. "It's pretty scary."

What's scarier is the broad interpretation of Canadian laws that don't seem to protect any of our online data.

'World of secrets'

"We are stuck in this world of secrets and a wilderness of mirrors, not really knowing what is going on or if we should feel comforted or feel deeply troubled or somewhere in between."
Wesley Wark, leading security expert

Sure, there are clear boundaries set for the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) and the RCMP, but when it comes to CSEC, the lines begin to blur.

University of Ottawa professor and national security expert Wesley Wark said CSEC has a mandate to collect foreign intelligence for the government of Canada. CSEC doesn't have authority to spy on Canadians, but it's been given what Wark called a "get-out-of-jail-free card" — ministerial approval to "inadvertently collect and retain Canadian communications."

That's apparently what happened with CSEC's large sweep of data at a major Canadian airport.

Some would argue it was a breach of Canadian law, but Wark said CSEC's approval to collect "metadata," which is all the data that surrounds the sending and receiving of communication, including who sent it, who received it, how and when it was sent, creates a loophole.

"That metadata, CSEC says, does not constitute a private communication and therefore it is not protected by the privacy act or any charter rights," he said. "A second argument (is) that they can do metadata even against Canadian communications, in pursuit of foreign intelligence material and that it's not in breach of law."

It's everywhere

"What we do know is that surveillance is truly ubiquitous at this point in time." Michael Geist, University of Ottawa research chair

That means Facebook conversations, private emails and other personal info can be swept up in the government's massive data bank as quick as you can "like" a photo.

Facebook and other social media sites are in the grey area of the law, said Geist, who told Metro as long as you have some privacy settings on your profile, messages between friends should be protected. While CSEC couldn't legally use the private information against you, it is allowed to "inadvertently" collect all our conversations.

Open sites like Twitter could be interpreted differently. Geist said one of his students was recently stopped by U.S. customs because he tweeted a mathematical formula before his travels. He was let go, but the idea of governments watching our every tweet is "shocking," he said.

Here's a glimpse at countries that spy on

In December 2013, the CBC received documents indicating CSEC Canada set up spy posts in 20 countries at the request of the NSA. The Privacy Act and Personal Information Protection and Electronic Documents Act are meant to protect citizens from government and private-sector spying.

The Fourth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution gives anyone the right to not be searched without reason. But in 1978, the government enacted the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act, which enables the government to spy on those who may pose a threat to national security. It has been repeatedly amended since 9/11.

‘It’s just a matter of time’ till they legalize it: Poll

Survey says. 75% of Americans think sale and use of marijuana will eventually be legal across the nation

Marijuana legalization in the U.S. seems inevitable to three-fourths of Americans, whether they support it or not, according to a poll out Wednesday.

The Pew Research Center survey on America’s shifting attitudes about drug policy also showed increased support for moving away from mandatory sentences for non-violent drug offenders.

The telephone survey found that 75 per cent of respondents

Most Americans think legal marijuana is inevitable, according to a new Pew Research poll. THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE — including majorities of both supporters and opponents of legal marijuana — think that the sale and use of pot eventually will be legal nationwide. It was the first time that question had been asked.

Some 39 per cent of respondents said pot should be legal for personal adult use. Forty-four per cent of those surveyed said it should be legal only for medicinal use. Just 16 per cent said it should not be legal at all.

The responses come as two states have legalized recreational marijuana, with more than 20 states and Washington, D.C., allowing some medical use of the drug.

“It’s just a matter of time before it’s in more states,” said Steve Pratley of Denver, a 51-year-old pipefitter who voted for legalization in Colorado in 2012. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Suspected prank leaves crustacean stranded

Lincoln County, Ont.
Returning the lobster back to the Atlantic will be no easy feat.

A southern Ontario humane society is trying to decide what to do with a lobster found abandoned in a box early Wednesday in a restaurant parking lot.

Lincoln County Humane Society executive director Kevin Strooband says the restaurant doesn't serve lobster but they suspect the crustacean was likely part of an April Fool's Day prank.

Strooband says they don't often have to deal with salt water animals, but were able to get some salt water from a supermarket and the lobster is in an aquarium at the humane society.

Strooband says the plan is to send the lobster back to the Maritimes where he probably came from.

The humane society is hoping that once a decision is made, they can find someone willing to take the lobster on a flight to Atlantic Canada and free it in the ocean.

And Strooband says if the person isn't planning to go near the ocean, his sister lives there and will meet the flight to take custody of the lobster.

Strooband said the investigation into where the lobster came from continues.

"It appears because yesterday was April Fools' that it is a prank, or was part of a prank, and then once the prank was over it was left," he added. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Senators say report shows CIA tortured detainees after 9/11

Senate intelligence committee probe.
Panel to vote Thursday on whether to make public the 6,200-page report's summary and key findings

Classified report

Congressional aides and outside experts familiar with the classified report say it is harshly critical of waterboarding and other harsh interrogation methods, and concludes that such practices provided no key evidence in the hunt for Osama bin Laden.

- The CIA disputes many of the conclusions in the report.

A U.S. Senate panel appears likely to demand the release of a contentious torture report that has sharply divided lawmakers and the CIA, as two centrist senators joined the push Wednesday for a summary of the review to be declassified.

In a joint statement, Sens. Susan Collins and Angus King said the still-classified Senate intelligence committee investigation would show the CIA tortured some terror detainees in its battle against terror after the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks. And they accused the agency of mismanaging its "enhanced interrogation program."

Collins and King are among the newest members of the intelligence panel. Collins is a moderate Republican. King is an independent who caucuses with Democrats. All Democrats on the committee are likely to vote for declassification of the report.

That step would initiate a process that could exacerbate a bitter rift between Senate investigators and CIA officials. Sen. Dianne Feinstein, a Democrat, and the committee chair, accuses the CIA of improperly monitoring the computer use of Senate staffers and deleting files, undermining the U.S. Constitution's separation of powers between the executive and legislative branches of government.

The CIA alleges the intelligence panel illegally accessed certain documents.

Calif. pipeline inferno

Utility facing 12 criminal charges

Pacific Gas and Electric Co. has been charged with 12 felony violations of U.S. pipeline safety laws linked to a 2010 natural gas pipeline explosion that sparked a fireball and levelled 38 homes in the San Francisco Bay Area.

The indictment could lead to a total possible fine of $6 million US, or more if the court decides the utility somehow benefited financially from the disaster.

Prosecutors allege that PG&E knowingly relied on erroneous and incomplete information when assessing the safety of the pipeline that eventually ruptured. Nearly four years later, the neighbourhood where eight were killed and dozens injured is still recovering.

Turkey

Court orders ban on Twitter lifted

Turkey's highest court has ruled that the country's Twitter ban violates the right to free expression and has demanded that access be restored.

Turkey suspended access to Twitter last month after the website became a conduit for links to recordings suggesting government corruption. The government then blocked access to YouTube following the leak of an audio recording of a secret government security meeting.

Many tech-savvy users, including President Abdullah Gul, found ways to circumvent the ban on both Twitter and YouTube.

A lower court had also ordered that access to Twitter be restored.

Cheating rises in the Land of the Rising Sun

Japan. Buttoned-up culture gets some lipstick on its collar via adultery website

Noel Biderman, chief executive of Avid Life Media Inc., which operates AshleyMadison.com, poses in Tokyo on Tuesday. The slogan written in Japanese reads: "Life is short. Have an affair." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ashley Madison, the world's biggest online hookup site for married people, works only when monogamy is the rule on the surface but, deep inside, couples want to cheat. That's why it is scoring big in Japan.

The nation that prides itself on conformity and proper appearances reached a million users in eight and a half months, the fastest pace among any of the 37 countries where the adultery site operates. The previous record was Brazil at 10 months. The U.S., which has the biggest number of users at 13 million, took a year to achieve the one million mark. Spain took nearly two years.

Extramarital sex and affairs are not new to Japan, but a site such as Ashley Madison is "a levelling out of the playing field" for women, said Noel Biderman, chief executive of Avid Life Media Inc., which operates AshleyMadison.com. There is a tradition of wealthy men taking mistresses in Japan and its male dominated society has provided plenty of outlets for married men to find casual sex.

The divorce rate in Japan is relatively low at about two cases per 1,000 people versus four cases in the U.S., although sinking marriages rates in Japan also lower the divorce numbers. In the 1960s, divorces were even rarer, with fewer than one per 1,000 people. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For better, for worse?

"The reason people have affairs is that they want to stay married."

Noel Biderman, CEO of Avid Life Media Inc., which operates AshleyMadison.com

LOSING IS WINNING IN COMEDY

HE SAYS

John Mazerolle
metronews.ca

I recently returned to the site where I died. It's also the place I killed one night. And it's definitely one of the places where I've felt most alive.

It was a comedy club.

I used to go to comedy school, which was just like regular school except for small differences like A) working hard meant going to bars five nights a week and B) students complained about such hardships as a three-hour gap between sketch class and improv class. (I'm not making that up.)

Stand-up comedy was (and is) part of the curriculum, so I was at a Yuk Yuk's to adjudicate students doing their final performances. The stand-up teacher selected me because I met two important criteria: I had the requisite skills to mark a score out of 10 on a piece of paper, and I had a working email address.

Was I any good at standup? Of course. Unless you're judging on the narrow criteria of, "Was I funny?" in which case, no, I wasn't good at it.

In two years of stand-up I had exactly one night where everything went just right. If you had stumbled in on that night, you might have imagined I knew what I was doing. Even a stopped clock is right twice a day, and this '80s-raised comic was a VCR clock flashing 12:00 when midnight rolled around.

But beyond that happy coincidence, I usually just survived my seven minutes.

I had two jokes that were adequate …

"I like Stephen Harper. Finally someone who's tough on the arts," and, "Do you know what we call black people back in New Brunswick? We call him Daryl. Because that's his name."

… but it's hard to fill 10 minutes with those, even with an amusing stammer and a bunch of knowing glances. Often I over-rehearsed the set so much I would have failed a Turing test.

Long monologue short, I didn't have a great time doing stand up. But yet when I was back in the club I realized I missed it.

Watching the students reminded me how comedy can make the usual pecking order irrelevant and reward people who are comfortable with their place in the world, no matter where that is.

This crowd loved the overweight awkward guy who reveled in being the overweight awkward guy, but recoiled instinctively from the "cool" broad-shouldered guy whose set could have been shortened to, "Vaginas and other cultures. Pretty scary, am I right?"

I also remembered how much the performers help each other out, how exciting it can be to look out at a full house, and — this is harder to remember than you'd think — how fun it is to entertain people.

But these thoughts are way too sappy for a column about the cynical world of standup.

So, speaking of sappy, let me tell you my can't-fail joke about New Brunswick!

Stop me if you've heard this one.

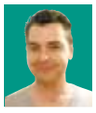
Beauty from violence on show at the Art Gallery of Ontario

Francis Bacon and Henry Moore. New exhibit pairs two artists who could be called the 20th century's biggest Debbie Downers



BACKSTAGE PASS
Ian Gormely
scene@metronews.ca

Billed as two "giants of British art," a more apt description for the stars of the Art Gallery of Ontario's latest exhibit might be two of the 20th century's biggest Debbie Downers, given their subject matter.

Terror and Beauty brings together the work of painter Francis Bacon and sculptor Henry Moore, men who, on the surface, have little in common.

"They led very different lifestyles," says Dan Adler, the exhibit's curator and an art history professor at York University. Bacon, a gay sadomasochist, called London home for most of his adult life, while Moore was married and led a relatively quiet life in the English countryside.

The two men were contemporaries, but not friends. Yet their individual experiences with violence drew them to a similar esthetic that focused on the human form, which they'd often dismember, gouge and scrape.

Francis Bacon's work will be exhibited at the AGO from April 5 to July 20. © ESTATE OF FRANCIS BACON/SODRAC (2013)

Moore fought in World War I, where his regiment was gassed and he was wounded. Bacon was part of an Air Raid Precautions unit during the Blitz, charged with putting out fires, rescuing the wounded, and recovering bodies. "The traumatic experience of living through the Blitz in London and other sources of violence, it affected their working methods and the form of their work," says Adler.

Bacon in particular has been criticized for the bleak outlook of his work. Yet while violence was a catalyst, Adler says that the artists' works emphasized perseverance.

At Wednesday's media preview, Oxford professor Francis Warner, who knew both men, said that this is both artist's enduring legacy.

"Never give up, see it through," he told the assembled group. "They both say trust in humanity."

Francis Bacon and Henry Moore: Terror and Beauty – April 5 to July 20 at the Art Gallery of Ontario, 317 Dundas St. West. See ago.net for details.

Bacon in Gotham

Francis Bacon's influence is widespread, but one unlikely area his work has infiltrated is the fictional world of Gotham City. Directors Tim Burton and Christopher Nolan both drew inspiration from Bacon's paintings when it came time to render a bleak atmosphere for their Batman films.

- Bacon's painting Figure with Meat can be seen in Burton's 1989 Batman where Jack Nicholson's Joker spares it from his henchman's vandalism. "I kind of like this one, Bob," he tells his employee. "Leave it."
- Nolan, meanwhile, modelled the smeared make-up of Heath Ledger's Joker after the desperate faces from a number of Bacon's canvases.

Island of Lemurs director David Douglas visits the lemurs at the Toronto Zoo. GEORGE PIMENTEL/WARNER

Madagascar dreaming

A filming fantasy. Canadian director David Douglas got his wish to film on the legendary island

scene@metronews.ca

David Douglas, the veteran wildlife filmmaker behind the new IMAX film Madagascar: Island of Lemurs, has dreamed of making a film on the island country in the Indian Ocean for 30 years.

He calls it a "remote and mythic place," but adds: "In wildlife filmmaking, everybody wants to go there and do it, but you never can."

Three things convinced the Canadian director to take a chance and travel there "to figure out how to make the movie."

First was the story of primatologist Dr. Patricia Wright. Douglas came across her while researching another film, but was taken with her efforts to protect Madagascar's lemurs, whose numbers are shrinking to alarming levels. Around since the time of the dinosaurs, the big-eyed creatures arrived on the island as castaways from Africa and have now evolved into hundreds of species.

Douglas wanted to shine a light on Wright's efforts to protect the lemur's delicate ecosystem.

The second thing was a technological advancement.

"The normal situation in wildlife filmmaking is you have film stock, this resource that costs money and it runs through the camera in a certain amount of time," he says.

"It can't be any longer. You have to reload it. So you have to spend a lot of your life trying to put yourself in the position of accurately predicting what an animal is going to do in the future because you want to have your camera running while it's happening.

New IMAX equipment developed for this film allowed him to shoot digitally on cameras with lots of memory.

"The camera is always on and all we do is turn it off when we like what we got."

The third draw was, of course, the lemurs themselves. "They are spectacular looking. They look like a pile of toys in your kid's closet because they're all different, but they're all sort of similar."

Sophie Turner warns more misery looms for lovely Sansa Stark

'I'm a broken woman.' Loras, Lannisters, and lemon cakes: Demure Sansa has had it tough in the Game of Thrones

ROMINA MCGUINNESS
Metro World News in London

Sophie Turner, who plays Sansa Stark, tells Metro to expect more blood, trauma and lies as the fight for the Iron Throne continues this season.

You're a Lannister now. How does that feel?
Sansa Lannister… great.

Really?
No! It's fun for me because I get to spend more time with Peter (Dinklage), but for Sansa it kind of sucks because these are the people who killed her father.

Do you think the name will have an impact on who she is?
She very much knows who she is. She's seen as being weak and vulnerable but at the end of the day, if she didn't please people, she'd have her head cut off.

Have you read all the books?
I only read my chapters. I flick through the books and mark them down. The third one is a really difficult read. Have you read it?

No...
I don't blame you. The writing is tiny. I'm always Wikipedia-ing it to get a sense of what's going to happen. More misery, that's what's going to happen.

Sansa looks so depressed. Does that not make you sad?
At first I couldn't really master how to cry and draw that emotion, so I just used my personal life. My grandma was really ill at the time and so I started thinking about her, but it just got me really down. And then I realized that you actually have to act and pretend you're in the situation.

So how do you do it now if you can't think of your grandma?
Her story is so sad that every time something shitty happens I feel like crying anyway. I'm a broken woman.

Is Joffrey a good kisser at least?
I guess — he wasn't bad! I was 14 when it happened. It was an innocent peck. I'll let you know when I have a full-blown snog.

Who'd you want that to be with?
There are a lot of fine young men on the show. I think Sansa would like to kiss Loras Tyrell, but he's gay. She wants some affection even if it is gay affection.

Did you know there was a GOT cookbook?
What would people want to cook? Ew.

The lemon cake recipe — Sansa's favourite — is really popular.
I hate them. And last season I was eating lemon cakes in this one scene and we had to do 10 setups. I counted and I ate just over 50 cakes. Mini ones, but I felt so fat and I hate them. So annoying.

Who deserves to sit on the Iron Throne?
Daenerys is desperate for this. Or Jon Snow, he's gone through a lot. Or maybe Sansa because she was supposed to get it in the first place, but turns out Joffrey is a psychopath.

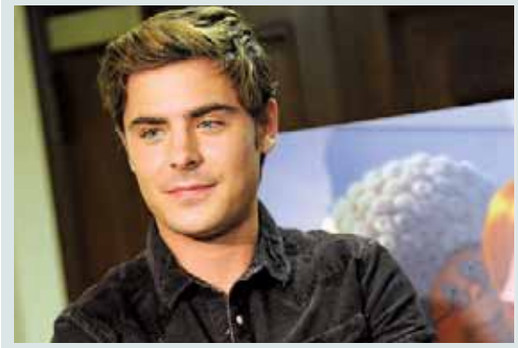
Living la vida Lohan: Lindsay blows through Oprah payday in a year

Despite Lindsay Lohan's impressive $2-million US payday for her Oprah Winfrey-produced reality series, the troubled starlet is reportedly flat broke again. "Only Lindsay could get paid such a large paycheque and once again be in dire financial straits," a source tells Radar Online. "After Lindsay's manager, agent, publicist (and taxes) were paid, she was left with $750,000." Which for most people would be great, but Lohan is not most people. "This was last year, and Lindsay has never been able to save any money in her life," the source explains, adding that Lohan "blows through money faster than she earns it." Evidence of her money woes seemed to pop up over the weekend when two of Lohan's credit cards were reportedly declined when she attempted to pay for $300 worth of merchandise at a Soho boutique, according to Page Six. "She looked really embarrassed and tried to negotiate before her friend finally stepped in and paid," a source says.

The Word



Somebody needs to stage an intervention for Zac Efron

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News in New York

Zac Efron needs help super fast before we all relive what happened to Cory Monteith. Last November, Efron allegedly "slipped on a puddle of water" which was "in his home" and broke his jaw so badly it had to be wired shut.

Shady as hell? Yes. And now an insider has told In Touch what we've assumed all along: That he hurt himself doing the bad stuff. "He does drugs alone," the inside source exclusively tells the mag. "It's sad."

A second insider tells In Touch. "He needs to get help before it's too late."

The time is ticking down to "too late." As we reported last week, Efron had another shady-as-hell altercation recently with his "bodyguard" and some homeless men after Efron's car "ran out of gas" near Skid Row in Los Angeles.

For some reason, Efron "threw a bottle out of the car," which scared some homeless people milling around. Tensions between the group and Efron's camp escalated, with the High School Musical star reportedly taking a punch to the mouth. Right. That sounds exactly like something that would happen to anybody anywhere and not a drug deal gone bad. Exactly.

Loving Superman came with a price for Big Bang star

Watch what you say about Big Bang Theory star Kaley Cuoco-Sweeting online, because she's probably reading it. "I'm obsessed. I openly admit to being totally insane about that," she tells Cosmopolitan magazine about checking up on what people write about her online. "I started reading (the comments) and thought, 'Maybe I need to make more of an effort and not go out in my UGGs and be disgusting.' So I started putting on makeup, and they started writing, 'Wow, someone really likes being in front of the camera' and, 'Her hair's done now for coffee.' I couldn't do anything right." The recently married actress admits, though, that she's had a lot more material through which to browse since she briefly dated Man of Steel star Henry Cavill last year. "I had no one following me until I met Superman," she says. "I've been in this business for 20 years, and my whole life I could go anywhere, do anything. There had not been on paparazzi photo of me until, like, several months ago."

HEALTHY, HAPPY SMILES

XIXINXING/SHUTTERSTOCK

April is Oral Health Month and a great time to think more about taking better care of teeth and gums.

"A smile is like a window to your body," says Dr. Travis Stork, a practising board-certified emergency medicine physician and an Emmy-nominated national television host. "As a doctor, I know that a healthy mouth is part of a healthy body."

Poor oral hygiene can cause bad breath and stained teeth, but it may also lead to gingivitis, an inflammation of the gums. Left untreated, gingivitis can cause more serious gum disease and even loss of teeth. At the same time, healthy teeth and gums make it easy for you to eat well and enjoy good food. And the health of your teeth can affect your self-image, too.

"I believe that good health comes with a healthy lifestyle, which includes staying active, eating healthy and taking care of oral health," Stork says.

Here are ways to keep teeth and gums healthy:

1 Reduce the amount of sugar in your diet — sugar is one of the main causes of dental problems. "I advise people to enjoy the natural sweetness of fruits and to cut out as much refined sugars as possible, like pop," Stork says.

2 Take time to brush, floss and rinse every single day. A good oral care routine, Stork says, includes brushing with an electric toothbrush for two minutes twice a day, flossing, and rinsing with an anti-septic mouthwash.

3 Use Crest Pro-Health Clinical toothpaste, Stork says. "It has been proven to help prevent and even reverse gingivitis and early stages of gum disease." It fights cavities, tartar, and plaque, whitens teeth, and helps freshen breath.

4 Visit the dentist twice a year (and your doctor once a year) for routine checkups. Besides having teeth cleaned, regular checkups can help uncover issues earlier when they are easier to treat.

5 Keep in mind that certain health conditions may require special care. For example, having diabetes or being pregnant increases the risk of gingivitis. Floss and brush regularly, and use Crest Pro-Health to help prevent and reverse gingivitis, Stork says. Speak to your dentist for more information.

6 Be a good role model to children. Just as being active together as a family is important, so is finding ways to teach children to make regular brushing and flossing a habit, too.

7 Avoid all tobacco products.

WAVEBREAKMEDIA/SHUTTERSTOCK

MAKE ORAL HEALTH A PRIORITY

Are you happy with your smile?

If you aren't it might be a good idea to start using a whitening toothpaste when you brush your teeth.

According to the Crest and Oral-B 2014 Great Canadian Smile Survey, 93 per cent of Canadian adults feel that having a white smile can impact the way other people perceive them and that can definitely affect the way you feel about yourself.

The survey revealed many other interesting insights into the oral hygiene habits and attitudes of Canadians.

For example, while eight in 10 Canadians say their dentist has recommended brushing, flossing and rinsing with mouthwash regularly, less than half — just 44 per cent — actually do it regularly. In fact, just three in 10 Canadians say they floss at least once a day.

What's also interesting is that Canadians might take better care of their teeth and gums if their doctor made it a priority. While three-quarters of Canadian adults trust the information their dentist provides regarding the impact oral care has on their overall health, half say that if their family doctor talked to them about their oral care they would take it more seriously.

In general, the majority of Canadians say oral health is an important part of their overall health. The survey showed almost two-thirds of Canadian adults say they have taken specific steps to improve their daily oral care routine in the last five years.

Furthermore, Canadian parents are also teaching their children that regular brushing is important. Seven in 10 parents with children younger than 12 have incorporated brushing for two full minutes twice a day as part of their child's daily oral care routine.

But only half take their children for regular checkups, one-third began flossing early in the child's life, and one-quarter have taught their child to rinse daily.

Modelling the (im)possible ideal

Lily of the virtue. Impossible.com is the online gift economy that encourages people to give and receive for nothing more than a thank you. Model Lily Cole's social mission shows why the best things in life come for free.

RICHARD PECKETT
Metro World News

"I'm going to start calling it possible, it sounds so much better," chuckles Lily Cole on her gift economy website and app Impossible.com. In a capitalist culture where cash and consumerism are king, the doll-faced model's objective of a gift exchange seems like the romantic notion of a naïve and innocent idealist. However, with the backing of Kwame Ferreira (founder of global innovation company Kwamecorp), Wikipedia founder Jimmy Wales and inventor of the World Wide Web Tim Berners-Lee, it's far from just being a concept that should be left percolating amongst the beanbags of a blue-sky think tank. It's a platform for humanism and altruism where wishes are posted and granted by like-minded individuals. The only currency is generosity and gratitude. The former Vogue cover girl, who graduated with a double first class in history of art from Cambridge in 2011, doesn't intend to take a salary from the social network, explaining, "This is my gift that I want to live outside of me."

Did you create Impossible.com in response to the recession?
It wasn't a specific reaction to that. But the conversation back in 2010 that coined the idea with a friend [Kate Tomlinson], who now works on the project, was in relation to the recession and more philosophically about why it is that when there is any recession, society is paralyzed as a consequence of economic paralysis. Because if you think about it, everyone has skills, time, resources, there is no intuitive reason why society couldn't continue to organize itself. We've become almost slaves to the structure we created, forgetting that we created it [laughs].

Do you believe that humans are innately good?
Yeah, I do and people have proven me right so far…

Are you trying to celebrate positive human actions?
There's definitely a celebration element to it. I was interested in the analogy between current ideas of online social reputation that most social networks like eBay and [taxi firm] Uber have with classical gift economies: the idea of social reputation being a big part of the equation. I'm not shy of that and I think that's a great thing when we celebrate each other's generosity. That said, it's not the principle motivator. If anything, it's a kind of currency of sorts to try and encourage the principle reason for the platform, which is the actual actions.

"The whole point of Impossible is about value, not money," says Lily Cole, seen here with Vivienne Westwood. CONTRIBUTED

Why are you steering clear of a rating system?
I think it works very well with transactional relationships. But what we're trying to do is so non-transactional and I just felt that a rating system would dehumanize it.

What's the most altruistic action you've performed?
I'm not a perfectly altruistic person at all. What I try to do is grow as a human. If I'm not kind, or do something wrong, I check myself. It's the intention to work on myself continually.

Have you personally helped anyone on the site?
I've helped quite a few people. The one that I enjoyed most was with a boy who wanted to practise his English. I noticed that he was in Manchester, a place where I was soon visiting, so I said I could meet him in person rather than over the phone. Then I saw that on one of his other wishes he'd wished that someone would help the homeless guy on the end of his street. We had a chat in English about this guy and I ended up getting a tent for the homeless man. I feel a bit self-conscious saying this, but the situation was quite magical — it went round in a nice big circle.

Do you stay in touch with the people that you help or is it very much one action and then move on?
I've met quite a few that I've stayed in touch with. A big part of the gift economy is that when someone does something for you for free, a subtle relationship is made. I can feel a community growing around me.

You've been the face of many fashion brands. Did you have concerns about what you were endorsing?
Yeah, that's why I've taken a different path. I started in fashion when I was 14, and it gave me so many options than I'd ever had before, but I was always a little conflicted about it. I was always questioning how consumeristic our society can be and how advertising works. I was looking at all these paradigms and feeling very much a big part of this machine.

Cookbook of the Week

Slim down your faves; keep flavour

Depriving yourself of your favourite foods or going to an extreme you can't maintain are two reasons diets fail.

Chef Jo Lusted offers a solution to diet failures with her new book Dish Do-Over, in which she transforms so-called "guilty pleasures."

Lusted's approach makes smart ingredient swaps and includes a "before and after" nutritional count. Among the recipes in the book are: Pizza Burgers, Shepherd's Pie, Beef Stroganoff, Poutine, Fish and Chips, Fried Chicken, Whoopie Pies, Margaritas and more. METRO

Dinner. This classic recipe replaces fatty ingredients and weighs in at 187 calories compared to the typical 533

"In this recipe, I replace the usual excessive amount of butter, bacon and cream with a respectable amount of olive oil, 1% milk and smoked paprika for smoky flavour without any calories," writes Jo Lusted in her book Dish Do-Over. "I also load this soup with veggies, making this a nutrient-dense version of the classic."

1. In a blender, purée 1 cup corn kernels and 1 cup each stock and milk until smooth. Set aside.

2. In a medium saucepan, heat oil over medium heat. Add onion, carrot, celery, garlic and thyme and cook, stirring frequently, until softened, about 6 minutes. Add paprika and flour and cook, stirring constantly, until fragrant, about 1 minute. Add potato, bay leaf and remaining 3 cups stock, increase heat to high and bring to a boil. Reduce heat to medium and simmer for 10 minutes or until potatoes are tender when pierced with a knife. [Make-ahead: Soup can be prepared to this point up to 48 hours in advance, covered and refrigerated. Warm soup over medium heat before proceeding with recipe.]

3. Stir in prepared corn purée, remaining 2 cups corn kernels and bell pepper and bring to a gentle simmer, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat, discard bay leaf and season with lemon juice, hot sauce, salt and pepper. Ladle into serving bowls and sprinkle with chives.

New rail to link Union, Pearson

Union Pearson Express. Transit connection a catalyst for condo growth

CONDO TRENDS
Duncan McAllister
life@metronews.ca

The new Pearson-Union train link will be operational in time for the 2015 Pan-American Games. This creates a new opportunity for condominium development along the line, which works well for commuters working in the downtown core and is convenient for airport employees and frequent fliers.

The Union Pearson Express will serve four key stations: Terminal One at Toronto Pearson, Union Station in downtown Toronto, and the Bloor and Weston GO Stations. At Bloor, Weston and Union, travellers can connect to other regional destinations easily and quickly.

New transit is always a catalyst for new development. Watch for new residential intensification around the Bloor and Weston stations, as well as the airport, with a new rail connection that will branch off from the GO Kitchener Rail Corridor and travel three kilometres to the airport.

One such development is Triumph Developments' Howard Park residences in Roncesvalles Village, with a four-minute walk to the UP Express. "You have the subway within walking distance, and now with this Union-Pearson connection, it becomes a major transit hub." says Triumph's president, Mario Ribeiro.

With only two stops along the line, the Union-Pearson train is like a downtown express. Commuters now have a new option for getting to the core, says Ribeiro. "You have a lot of people who are trying to stay downtown and move into these massive towers downtown. The difference now is they can actually live in an established, low-rise neighbourhood, and be five minutes away from downtown."

With the new transit development, which many Torontonians say has been long overdue, commuters can now get from the airport to Union Station in a mere 25 minutes. Now that's convenience. "It doesn't matter where you live, if it's downtown or not, the options to get to the airport these days are you get a cab, or you've got to get a car." says Ribeiro. "You know how expensive it is. You have to spend each way on parking and everything else, a small trip will cost you a couple of hundred dollars."

Howard Park Phase Two is an eight-storey mid-rise boutique-style condominium featuring luxury finishes and large and private suite terraces and panoramic city skyline views. Ninety-six units are planned, with prices starting from the low $300,000s. Each suite will have nine-foot ceilings, a complete package of top-of-the-line appliances, stone countertops in the kitchen and bath, and hardwood flooring.

The UP Express, shown at left, will provide new transit options for condo dwellers along the route. Above, Perspective Condos in Etobicoke will be located not far from the Weston GO Station, one of four key stations on the line. CONTRIBUTED

Legal Matters

Closed versus open mortgages

LEGAL MATTERS
Jeffrey Cowan
home@metronews.ca

I am getting some extra financing from a mortgage broker who is using a private lender. He is using terms such as closed and open financing. What is the difference?

Most mortgages that you obtain from financial institutions are closed, meaning you can't pay them out without some form of the penalty. This is also the case with private financing deals. The lender wants to be put in a position whereby they would earn the interest they had otherwise counted on when they forwarded the funds.

An open mortgage allows you to pay off the loan at any time without penalty and interest. Typically, fixed mortgages are at lower interest rates because they provide the lender with greater certainty.

Open mortgages can garner higher rates because you have the flexibility of paying back the loan at any time. Often in private financing deals, you can find that a loan is closed for an initial period of time and then it becomes open to repayment.

Ontario Building Code

Ready for mid-rise buildings?

BRYAN TUCKEY
President and CEO of the Building Industry and Land Development Association (BILD) can be found at twitter.com/bildgta, facebook.com/bildgta, and bildblogs.ca.

Our government partners have taken the first step in ensuring that GTA residents will have new housing options.

The provincial government announced recently that it will move ahead with proposed changes to the Ontario Building Code to allow the use of wood-frame construction in buildings up to six storeys.

This is great news for our industry and new-home buyers. The construction of safe, affordable mid-rise buildings will bring new housing and rental options to our communities and vibrancy to our streets. The next step for the province is a regulatory review of the implications of adopting the proposal.

Currently, the Ontario Building Code limits wood-frame construction to four storeys. Our industry has long advocated for Ontario to increase the height restriction to six storeys, similar to what currently exists in British Columbia.

BILD has been involved in this initiative from the beginning. We worked collaboratively with the Ontario Home Builders' Association and the Residential Construction Council of Ontario. Our efforts were supported by a number of key government partners, including City of Toronto chief planner Jennifer Keesmaat and chief building official Ann Borooah.

We believe this proposal will help introduce quality, safe mid-rise buildings to the GTA market, which will assist in planning for the up to 100,000 people and 50,000 jobs that come to our region every year.

This is a great example of government, industry and consumers working together to help build a greater GTA and I feel privileged to have been involved in this very important initiative.

Get fresh with your living room

DIY. 4 simple solutions to make your living space spring to life

Lack of colour, outdated decor and overall disconnection can hold a living room back from its full potential. Bring your living space back to life to represent your unique style and needs. With spring in the air, consider a radiant revival by adding a touch of trend into the heart of your home with a few easy DIY tips.

Cue the hue

Make your walls the star of your living space with an accent wall. There are many options with accent walls such as using bold colours, wall paper prints, and different textures. It's usually best to choose a print or colour that picks up other colours in the room, and to choose a wall that you want to draw attention to. Who knew incorporating colour could be so easy?

Rug remedy

Don't let confusing floor options cramp your style, instead use an area rug to accent your living room. An area rug can draw the eye in the direction you want to highlight, such as an entertainment area or a fireplace. Consider upgrading a basic rug by adding a design using fabric spray paint and a plywood stencil to make a bold statement. A stylish rug can be a simple fix for a disconnected living space while also adding a cosy, comfortable feel.

Go bold and go home to a vibrant living space. ISTOCK

Curtain call

Shed light on your living space by giving your windows a vibrant treatment.

Curtains are a great way to play with different textures in your living room and can easily be changed to suit your needs, seasons, and interior trends. Sheer materials are a great option because they let in the perfect amount of light while providing a lavish atmosphere.

If you currently have a curtain rod installed, consider a simple DIY embellishment by spray painting it metallic gold or silver.

House Crashers

Daring decor

Dress your living room in daring designs with out-of-the-box patterns and bold colours. Throw pillows are a great option to consider if your living room is lacking those essential finishing touches. Pillows allow you to experiment with patterns, colour schemes and textures without committing to a complete design overhaul. You can make your own throw pillows using no-sew options such as fabric glue or iron-on adhesive.

Karl Lohnes

I'm a big believer that ideas and inspiration are everywhere, and if your mind is attuned, you'll always be inspired. Take, for example, my latest visit to Vancouver, where I enjoyed a short stay at the newly-refurbished OPUS Hotel, a home-away-from-home for those who love colour, design and style. Located in the very chic area of Yaletown, the hotel is surrounded by decor shops, restaurants and lounges.

This boutique hotel has a variety of decor-themed rooms that allow guests to experience anything from bad-boy funk to glam-star luxury. My favourite room was painted a juicy orange which brightened my day in contrast to the hazy grey spring weather that Vancouver presented outside.

If you're itching for some colour inspiration, then the OPUS hotel will truly inspire. Like the look? I've shopped for a few on-trend decor items to help get the look at home.

A glamour OPUS worth imitating

Instant sunshine prevails with orange walls, funky pop-art and versatile, multi-use furnishings in the inspiring OPUS king room.

The simplest way to add your favourite trend colour to a room is with throw pillows. Delano Striped Toss Cushion, $26, UrbanBarn.com

Extras that feel almost as good as room service

Turn your bedroom into an oasis with all the comforts of a chic hotel room:

- Add a small-scale loveseat or chair if space allows. Mid-century modern furnishings tend to work well as they are smaller in scale.
- Include your very own single-serve brew system for those early mornings when you just can't face your roommates.
- Add double-duty furnishings like console tables, ottomans and beds that offer storage in small spaces.
- Get yourself a small fridge; there's nothing better than your own bottled water and snack station.

Next up: The Bruins are back in town

Toronto's final sprint. Memories of yesteryear linger over Leafs' need to win

Jake Gardiner celebrates defenceman Cody Franson's goal on the Red Wings in Toronto on Saturday. The Leafs need a miracle in their final five games to reach the playoffs, starting against Boston. FRANK GUNN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

In the Boston Bruins, Jake Gardiner sees one of the best teams in the NHL but also one he and the Toronto Maple Leafs should be excited to face with their playoff hopes on the line again.

"We think we match up well against Boston," Gardiner said. "I'm just going back from last year in the playoffs. Obviously it didn't end well, but I think we all elevate our game against them. We know they're one of the top teams in the league and it seems like we're always prepared to play them."

The Leafs had better be prepared this time around as they likely must run the table in their final five games to give themselves a realistic chance of making the playoffs.

Toronto's debilitating eight-game losing streak finally came to an end Tuesday with a home win over the Calgary Flames. Up next are the Bruins, who came back to beat Toronto in the first round last spring after an epic Leafs' collapse in Game 7.

Boston was 15-0-1 in its last 16 games entering Wednesday night's road game against the Detroit Red Wings. Boston's only loss in that time was to the Montreal Canadiens in a shootout, and in outscoring opponents 57-23, the Bruins have made a lot of teams feel desperate.

Leafs head coach Randy Carlyle hopes his team can find some positives in their desperation this late in the season.

"When you play teams of that calibre, you have to be on top of your game, you have to be playing at your highest level," he said. "You've got to be prepared to compete in the small areas of the ice because they're a big hockey club and they've got a lot of depth in their lineup and they play the same way. You've got to be prepared to earn your space on the ice."

Even if backup goaltender Chad Johnson starts in place of Vezina Trophy candidate Tuukka Rask, the Bruins present challenges up and down the ice. It's no surprise Boston is atop the league as former Calgary Flames captain Jarome Iginla has 13 goals and five assists in 18 games since the Olympic break and captain Zdeno Chara has earned some Norris Trophy talk of late.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sportsmanship

Paul Ranger is the Toronto Maple Leafs' nominee for the Bill Masterton Memorial Trophy.

- Ranger has four goals and eight assists in 49 games this season.
- He left the ice on a stretcher during a game on March 19, not seriously injured.
- Ranger's back to the NHL after four years. He left Tampa Bay for personal reasons in 2009. He played last year for the Toronto Marlies.

Hometown boy

Clarkson: Villain or saviour?

David Clarkson had enough time to think about all the goals he didn't score during a disappointing first season with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Sprung by a perfect pass from Mason Raymond, Clarkson didn't over-think it. He just beat Calgary Flames goaltender Karri Ramo for his first goal since Feb. 4, 17 games ago.

Clarkson's fifth goal of the season turned out to be the game-winner for the Leafs, who snapped an eight-game streak of regulation losses and could use more contributions from the free-agent signee as they try to save this season.

"It's no secret it's been tough," Clarkson said. "Obviously, personally, I'm not happy with the season and I hold myself accountable. It's got to be better."

With just 11 points in 55 games, Clarkson is 15th on the Leafs in scoring, one back of Dave Bolland, who's played just 21 games due to a severed tendon in his ankle. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Star TFC striker Defoe, Caldwell to sit out Saturday

MLS. Toronto's depth to be tested in matchup with Columbus after injury, suspension

Toronto FC will be without star striker Jermain Defoe and defensive lynchpin Steven Caldwell for Saturday's game against the Columbus Crew.

Defoe, who has scored all three of Toronto's goals this season, has been sidelined by a slight hamstring strain while Caldwell must serve a suspension. And the injury list could be longer with midfielder Jonathan Osorio facing a second week out with his own hamstring issue.

Manager Ryan Nelsen says Defoe, who had a scan Tuesday after leaving Saturday's game in Salt Lake City early, will be out "for the short term."

"Not a major thing but definitely unavailable this weekend," he said.

The 31-year-old England striker was substituted in the 61st minute Saturday favouring the back of his left thigh as he went to the dressing room.

Toronto FC's Jermain Defoe will miss Saturday's game. CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Caldwell was suspended one game and fined an undisclosed amount Wednesday for what MLS called "serious foul play that endangers the safety of an opponent."

The hard-nosed Scottish centre back — TFC's captain — was yellow-carded for a studs-up tackle on midfielder Ned Grabavoy in the 3-0 loss to Real Salt Lake.

Toronto had hoped to avoid a ban, arguing that the referee had seen the incident and decided on the appropriate punishment. But the league's disciplinary committee disagreed.

While Caldwell insisted he was just trying to win the ball, it was an ugly challenge that could have merited a straight red card, which carries with it a minimum one-game suspension.

Caldwell is the second Toronto FC player to receive supplemental discipline. Brazilian midfielder Jackson missed the Salt Lake game after getting a one-game ban for an elbow thrown away from the ball in a 1-0 win over D.C. United.

The latest suspension is especially worrying because Doneil Henry, Caldwell's partner in central defence, has not trained this week because of a jarred knee suffered in Salt Lake City.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Moving forward

"Jermain's come in and done really well, obviously. But he got a slight strain and we move on. That's life."

Toronto FC manager Ryan Nelsen

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
See to it that you are rewarded for your efforts, especially on the work front where others may try to give you less than you deserve. You don't have to be aggressive but make sure you get what you are worth.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
The planets will make it easy for you to complete a task that needs to be out of the way right away. If you focus all your energy in one direction today, there is no telling what you might accomplish.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Call it as you see it and don't worry about the reaction. Not everyone will be pleased that you're so open about the issues but it's their fault for backing ideas that are easily disproved.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Try not to get angry with those who can't make up their minds as quickly as you. If you want to get things done, you will either have to go it alone or make alliances with those who share your hunger for success.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You seem to be working harder than ever but are you working for yourself or others? That's the question you most need to ask today and if the answer is the latter you will need to make changes.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
If there is someone you would like to know better, let them see you are interested. If you make the right sort of move now, it could be the start of a beautiful friendship (or more).

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Give partners and loved ones your support today, even if you have good reason to criticize. Whatever they may have done and however much it may have affected you, it was an honest mistake.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
A relationship that has gone through some difficult times can be repaired but first you must ask yourself if that is what you truly desire. The Sun at odds with your ruler Pluto suggests you may be thinking of ending it once and for all.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
A new business venture can be a success but to make it work you will need to give everything to it. Is it worth the time and energy? Only you can decide. Just do it soon.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
If you believe in yourself and work diligently towards a well defined goal there is no reason why your name should not be up in lights — and your bank balance blessed by a large input of cash.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
The Sun at odds with power planet Pluto today warns you must resist the temptation to go to extremes. If you overstep the mark at home or work you could end up paying a price.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
If you want something today there is a chance someone will give it to you but you have got to ask directly. If you drop hints chances are they won't understand. SALLY BROMPTON
